SIX BURGLARIES CHARGED TO KAH

Allegations of a succession of burglaries fell thick and fast around Sam Kahi, a Hawaiian youth, who faced Police Judge Monsarrat this morning, charged with participation in six cases of larceny in the second degree and one instance of larceny in the first degree.

Kahi, who successfully eluded the attendants to the local chain-gang some ten days ago, and was recaptured on Saturday, following a desperate flight, through the business district of the city, and a subsequent encounter with officers, was an object of much interest at the morning session of the district court.

The charge of jail-breaking was not pressed, the authorities relying on the six counts for burglary as sufficient to hold Kahi for a considerable time.

Kahi waived examination in the lower court. He will be tried in circuit court, following an indictment from the grand jury. In the meantime Kahi is being kept under more than ordinary surveillance by the officers.

Chief of Detectives McDuffie succeeded in landing a brace of alleged gamblers in the police dragnet yesterday and as a result of the cases being brought before Judge Monsarrat each received fines ranging from five to ten dollars. The men were found conducting a gambling game on one of the inter-island steamers, gaining access to the vessel by the means of a small ship's boat.

FENNEL JAILS OLD OFFENDER

"I believe that with the arrest and conviction of Lum Hin, a Chinese residing at Camp Number 2, we have succeeded in putting a ban upon the extensive and illicit sale of liquor at this congested section of the city," declared License Inspector Fennell this morning following the session of police court where the Chinese was assessed fines aggregating over two hundred dollars.

According to testimony from Fennell and officers, they descended upon Camp 2 on Vineyard street yesterday and caught two men making purchases of native wine, commonly known in police parlance as "dago red."

One man is alleged to have secured a dozen bottles, while a quantity of the wine was purchased by the second visitor. Officers Fennell, Belmont and Akul placed the Chinese under arrest and then conducted a search which resulted in many bottles of the vintage being found in a number of rooms throughout the camp.

In lieu of the necessary funds with which to liquidate the fines and court costs, the defendant Chinese was committed to prison. It is expected that he will serve some seven months until his score with the city and county is satisfied.

Fennell is of the opinion that a large share of the intemperance brought to light at the Vineyard street camp was occasioned by the blind piggery operated by this defendant. He alleges that quantities of the wine and liquor were stored in neighboring rooms by the wily Chinese. The result was that with a succession of visits to the camp by officers little or no incriminating evidence was discovered, until the successful raid made yesterday.

NEWCOMERS CLUB MEMBERS FROM MANY COUNTRIES

The first meeting of the Newcomers' Club was held yesterday afternoon at the Young Men's Christian Association, and was followed by an informal supper in the cafeteria, which was attended by practically every one who was present at the meeting.

From four o'clock until a quarter to five, Anderson's orchestra gave a concert in the lobby, and following this the meeting came to order in Cooke Hall, where the discussion on the subject, "Principles of Jesus as Applied to Everyday Life" was led by Ed. Towse.

Seventeen States and countries were represented at the meeting, which were England, Ireland, Scotland, Sweden, Germany, Australia, Missouri, Wisconsin, New York, Arkansas, Iowa, Colorado, Minnesota, Nebraska, Virginia, Maine and Hawaii. About thirty-five men were present.

SECTION NOTES

At a meeting of the candidates on the Democratic ticket held on Saturday afternoon, the following were named to serve on an advisory committee for the management of the campaign: J. L. Coke for the Senatorial candidates, Julius Asch Jr. for the Representatives, W. H. McClellan for the supervisors, and David Kuphea for the county ticket. The committee elected Col. C. J. McCarthy chairman, and he will occupy a desk in the headquarters in the Waity building, where a banner announcing that the Democrats are ready for business was hung out this morning.

The committee decided to open the campaign with a big mass meeting at Ala Park on October 9, when the candidates will be presented to the people and will speak in behalf of their candidacy.

David Kalauokalani Jr., candidate for reelection as county clerk on the Republican ticket, opened the political luncheon Saturday night with an affair of this kind at his house. Among the speakers were Kuhio, J. M. Dowsett, B. von Damm and Charles Bartlett, all of whom made pleas for close harmony in the interest of the entire ticket. Delegates from the second, third, sixth and seventh precincts were guests together with the candidates.

Harmony having made its appearance felt in the Republican party, Prince Kuhio will close his headquarters on Alakea street, and his organization will be merged with that of the Republican organization in the new headquarters.

Prince Kuhio, Delegate to Congress, will not get the support of the Home Rulers, according to one of the leaders this morning. He said that the Home Rulers postponed their convention from time to time in order to ascertain whether Prince Kuhio would run independently of the Republican party, but as soon as he became candidate of the Republican party the Home Rulers dropped him entirely and gave their united support to their leader, Charles K. Notley.

Notley when seen this morning in the Senate hall, where Secretary Fisher of the Interior Department is conducting an official investigation, said he would have been willing to step aside and support the Prince had the latter run as an independent candidate for Delegate to Congress.

"I thought that Prince Kuhio was going to run independently," said the Home Rule leader. "Had he done so, I certainly would have come out openly in favor of supporting him as the next Delegate to Congress. As it is, he is running on the Republican ticket, and it is therefore expected that he will be supported by the Republicans."

Tomorrow evening the Hui Unionists will hold another important meeting in their headquarters on Queen street. According to George K. Kane, president of the hui, it is his intention to ask the unionists to endorse any and all the political candidates who are aspiring for legislative and municipal honors.

Joel C. Cohen, who has been constantly keeping in close touch with the leaders of the hui union, will, it is said, join the association for the purpose of getting the indorsement of the members. Cohen said last Saturday that, as a labor man, he was willing to become a member of the hui, not because of his expectation to get the support of the party, but because he wants to become one of its leaders in the future.

Kane and Cohen were conspicuous on the streets this morning. They called on their friends with a view to getting their support for the coming campaign. As usual, Cohen wore his smile as he shook hands with all he met.

BASEBALL FOR OARSMEN.

The Healan oarsmen will have another crack at the Alamedas before the latter return to the Coast, but the test will come on land this time. A ball game has been arranged between the two clubs, the visitors having found one or two transplanted Alamedans who are eligible to wear the club colors on the diamond.

Saturday night the Healan club gave a banquet at the Moana Hotel for the Alameda crew and their own winning crews.
